MINISTER'S COLUMN

This is my first vacation in five years. It is my third week in Detroit. I am preaching every night in the Hazel Park Baptist church. The church is located three miles from Royal Oak where Father Coughlin holds forth, broadcasts and has built about him a wonderful Bethel and is surrounded by a great following. In the opposite direction, south, it is nine miles to Cadillac Square, the hub of Detroit. Level, my all about us is level as the floor. Detroit, what a city, the fourth in population in the U.S.

We motored over to the city of Jackson one day to a state convention, 78 miles from Detroit. We journeyed to Ann Arbor, where the great Michigan State university is located, from here they send out some of the mighty football players of all the land. Another day we motored across to Mt. Clemens, the widely heralded health resort. I thought I wanted to taste of the mineral water, but the sulphur odor was too strong for me. I had the pleasure of a trip to Fort Wayne, a fort distinguished by mighty struggle in the early history of our country. This historic spot, owned by the U.S. government is located along the Detroit river, in what is now the older section of Detroit. It is certainly a strategic location.

The fort covers many acres on the peak of a natural elevation of land, that rises probably fifty feet above the level country that surrounds it on three sides, bounded on the fourth by the Detroit river. The fort is inland from the river a distance of probably five hundred yards. Fort Wayne is sunk beneath the level of the top of the mound. Nothing visible when you approach it save the hill-top. The fort proper may cover a space of four acres. It is honey-combed within with tunnels, the walls of stone and brick are six feet thick, long slits probably five feet high and four inches wide are arranged every few yards for rifle or sharp shooting. On the top of the fort and at each corner and midway between are clusters of cannons, hidden completely from outsiders view. In the very center of the fort is three story living quarters for hundreds of men. Approaching the fort from all sides you must drop into a great moat that surrounds the fort, probably fifteen feet deep and thirty feet wide. This to me is the most interesting of all American forts that I have visited, even Fort McHenry at Baltimore, not excepted. Here at Fort Wayne soldiers from our original colonies battled with the English for the freedom of our country. It was a strategic spot, struggled for in desperation by

We spent another day at the Ford village, just outside the Detroit city limits. Ford has built a city and put a fence around it. In the city he has purchased, moved and enclosed the Court House from Logan county, Illinois. This is where Abraham Lincoln first practiced law and where he won his first case. A log fire burning in the court house was lit by President Hoover February, 1929, and is kept burning perpetually in memory of Lincoln. The Edison Laboratory building where Edison’s first inventions were achieved was moved from Menlo Park, New Jersey and the machine shop from Florida. In both these buildings log fires kindled by President Hoover is to burn on night and day in memory of the great inventor. Think of it, Edison’s entire laboratory, picked up and moved to the Ford Village, and the first machine shop, boiler, engine, lathes, pulleys, all spirited over to the Ford Village. The little red brick school house where Ford attended school, an old inn, fireplace, bar and trappings of the 40’s all intact set up in the Ford Village. A stone house, wall two feet thick, stone roof, stone fence, stone barn, all moved from England and reset, this house is two hundred years old.

the Village is under roof but will not be completed within, the guide told us, for probably five years. The floor in this great building covering a space of eight and one-fourth acres is made of small oblong blocks of teakwood about two and one-half inches wide by sixteen inches long. This is the most beautiful, the most substantial floor I ever saw. This teakwood is very hard, has a beautigful grain, it is imported from India. Mr. Ford has fine-combed the world to obtain relics and curios for his museum. I noticed among the furniture a writing desk owned by General Grant, the auto owned and used by the Kaiser of Germany during the World War, one of the first locomotives and by its side one of the latest models having a speed of 100 miles per hour.

Mary Gardner visited with Virginia Judy over the weekend. She also favored us Sunday evening by reciting several poems at the church service. We hear she can recite poetry by the hour.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer A. Williamson and son visited over the weekend at Macksburg, Ohio with Mrs. Williamson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. DeLong. The DeLongs had just returned from Oklahoma. P. S. Mr. Williamson took a calf along with him as a peace offering or possibly for some other reason.

According to Mr. Perry Schnee the mountains of the northern part of Pennsylvania must be full of deer. He saw at least 50 in the week he spent there including a herd of eight. There are also bears in this vicinity but he didn't see a single one. The roads are full of bumps and stones and first class Goodyear tires are very essential to anyone expecting to travel them safely.

Drumium — Some few weeks ago in giving the time necessary to produce various parts of this paper we estimated one hour as the time necessary for Rev. Hulme to write his article. Rev. Hulme tells us now, that rarely does he write his column in one hour. Usually it takes him two or three days to get it into shape. All we have to say is Rome was not built in a day, quality products take time.

The minister’s articles are in the quality class.

Only Betty Bishop and Jean Ribben attended the class in viola last Friday. The other members probably attended the big party that night, which is all right. However, in general, on future Friday evenings there should be a larger number present. Remember considerable money has been spent in order that old violins can be repaired, music purchased, etc. Foster C. Connell is instructor. Encourage him by practicing your assigned lessons and by your presence Friday at 7:00 P. M.

Jane Henderson, Baumgeber road, was unable to play with the orchestra last Sunday evening because of a sore throat. Some others usually at practice were also absent but not because of illness. If you can play an instrument well or otherwise we would be pleased to have you attend our practice meetings. The usual time is Wednesday at 7:30 P. M.

and William Shaffer's class last Friday night was a great success. There were 64 youngsters present besides at various times throughout the evening dozen or more older people. Good eats, wonderful decorations—we are proud of these two classes. The same evening the men's class held a party at the home of C. M. Woodring. We arrived late but in plenty of time to listen to the many interesting and inspiring things which were discussed. Rev. Walters was present and told us about some of his experiences, which were very helpful. And this was a birthday party for C. M. Woodring. A big cake, many candles, pumpkin pie, sandwiches and coffee. Foster Connell accompanied by Esther Shakespeare entertained us with several musical selections.

Another matter of history. The get-together meeting at the church last Sunday evening was a great success. Coffee, cake and cookies were served at 6:30 P. M. At the table plans were set on foot for activities of great importance to our church. These plans are to be reported upon and brought to a head this Friday evening at our regular church night business meeting. The devotional services started at approximately 7:30 and included several numbers by the Bible school orchestra, instruction in Bible verses, singing, poems recited by Miss Mary Gardner, and a paper read by Mrs. Perry Schnee on the possibilities of accomplishing good by Christmas.
