MINISTER'S COLUMN

Now, friend, what have you lost? The little girl on her way to church was sobbing, she had lost her rosary. What greater misfortune could overtake anyone? To the man who lost half a million dollars in stocks the child's loss is insignificant. But this is a season of losses. They tell of the loss of the farm, the home, of life's savings. The loss of a job, position, health. Nerves gone, hope gone, nothing left. LCDS. LCDS.

Our wise men tell us that we are all trying to hold tight to the same twirling planet. To lose, we are told, is now the order of the day, quite normal things were too high, everything out of sight, abnormal. Now we are getting down to earth again. However, to be told you have lost is vexing, it's not the pleasant end to hold. It is exasperating, it stings, it scalds, it bites, it kills. Now then seriously, what have you lost?

A woman in the Bible story lost a piece of money. Job lost, lost camels, sheep, horses. It was a clean sweep for Job. Yet, the sky, for the woman and the sky for Job had a silver lining. They each were recompensed and with a joyful experience gained.

All this does not explain the cruel, stabbing loss that strikes you down. Then let us see, what have you lost? Is it a quality, such as honesty, justice, truth, love, mercy or hope? We should learn that some things are temporal and some are eternal. So far as temporal values go, we sometimes, in some ways, must lose, lose all. Then the values, that are indestructible, those we cannot lose, they are eternal. Learn the lesson, brother, then you will neither abuse others, curse yourself, nor libel God.

Napoleon lost, lost his mighty army, his private fortune, his home, his sovereign rule, no more to be emperor of a mighty nation. The tempter then said, “Napoleon, all is lost. Death by your own hand would be a sweet release. No human soul can stand up beneath such staggering humiliation.” But Napoleon replied, “I have not lost. I am still Napoleon. My soul, my courage, my spirit is undaunted and undimmed.” Wars, reverses, and history's desolations, the wreck of empire, the falling of castles, yet, Napoleon was undaunted. Because of the quality, called courage, or vision, or hope. These are the qualities that remain after the storm or floor or fire have spent their fury, the qualities that never die.

GEO. M. HULME, Minister

This last Saturday, June 29th, Edwin and Lurie Welmore celebrated their fifty-fourth wedding anniversary. Their wedding took place in the evening, and on that morning fifty-four years ago Lurie and cousin Jessie went to the woods for flowers, ferns, etc., at which time a terrible thunder storm came up. Later A. W. Green, father of Jessie and uncle of Lurie remarked that Jessie got wet but Lurie got wetmore.

Subscription cards for this paper received during the first week numbered 74. Besides this number a few people indicated they would like to send the paper to one to ten other persons. Could there be more who would be willing to subscribe for some others besides themselves? There are quite a few who indicate that they like to receive the paper but cannot afford to pay for it.

What people would be willing to pay for the paper interests many. It has run from nothing to $2.50 a year with the average at 68.7 cents per year.

If we are to mail the paper there must be subscribers. Send in your card.

—DEATH—

Mr. and Mrs. V. T. Henderson, left for North Carolina on Wednesday morning of this week on account of the death of Mr. Henderson's Father. It seems as if these folks were having more than their share of trouble at this time for it was just two weeks ago that Mrs. Henderson's little two-months old grandson was accidentally smothered to death in bed.

To these good people who have so many times extended a helping hand to others, we extend our sincere sympathy.
