COURAGE

That's it, my brother, you need courage. You can't put it across without courage. No battle was ever won without courage. If you save and advance your business you must have courage.

A faint heart never won a fair lady, is an old adage, it takes courage. See to it that you have a good back tone, a clear eye, a level head, then top it off with that quality called courage. Courage is admirable of human qualities and it is certainly one of the most applauded.

Many men are pre-eminently fitted for life by many outstanding gifts or talent but they fail because they lack courage. Courage must be sustained by prudence or wisdom or ability, however, it is possible to have all wisdom, all power, all love, every human opportunity in your favor, yet, without courage one fails.

Oft times the difference between ordinary men who fail and men who accomplish lies in this one quality, courage, undaunted courage, not so much physical as moral courage is sublime.

The man who says no, thank you sir I don't drink, but come be a good fellow says the world. Courage firmly says no. Some men are born brave, many are chicken hearted, a multitude go like dumb driven cattle, many there be that are tempted, swayed, bought, persuaded, they weaken, they fail, they are damned.

Buck up, my brother, this age demands courage. Who shall have fear if they be in the line of duty? Who shall fail if they are anchored to Everlasting Providence? Who shall tremble at giants or ghosts when the eternal God surrounds us with an invisible army? Refuse to cring and slink and be cowed by this swaggering, blustering, bullying old world. Line up with the mighty influences for good, let the light of hope and courage light up your face, take hold of your daily task with a courage born of conviction that you have a place and the Almighty God has a purpose for your humble sojourn here among the children of men.

Have courage, my boy, have courage. Even the eternal God can accomplish little or nothing through a poor mortal that is lacking in courage.

In the Bible story, Caleb stilled the people before Moses and said, Let us go up at once and possess the land for we are well able to overcome it. Courage, that is it, invincible courage.

A Current Lesson Analysis

For April 11

This lesson is the old familiar story of Adam and Eve in the garden of Eden. It is interesting not only because it involves a man and a woman but also because the things that are recorded are true to the conditions we find ourselves in today. The principles which were factors in the result of the first sin are the same without change in fundamentals operative in your life and in mine today.

God's plan involves the development of self as an agent of God. The good derived from contacts in a world of sin is found in the acquiring of ability to resist and to overcome it. This is the reason we find a forbidden tree and a serpent in the garden. An existence in a garden with nothing to overcome, just exist and eat, would develop nothing but a worthless, spineless jelly fish and not a courageous, worthy man or woman. We grow by grace in meeting opposition.

The conversation of Eve with the serpent reveals the fact that she pitied herself. Her statements of the requirements of God are overdrawn and the punishment He promised for disobedience is nullified by the use of the word "lest" instead of "surely die." Many people will tell you that the life of a Christian is too strict, that you only live once, and that perhaps there is no hell anyway. Eve told the serpent that she should not do the thing and she told him why. Then she did it. Here we have the clear-cut definition of sin. It is doing the thing you know to be wrong. God's plan is to judge you by the words of your own mouth.

The serpent lied. He told Eve things which were absolutely not true and appealed to her in three ways to transgress God's law namely, by the lust of the flesh, the appeal of the eye, and the aspiration to be like God. Sin is based upon false reasoning. It is always self-justified to a certain degree. We build up philosophies which will sustain us in our weaknesses rather than face facts. The deeper a man is in sin the less there is in his life to admire. It is God's plan to build strength of character and personality that a positive, wholesome influence may be exerted in contacts. This building of character involves faith for guidance and work for development. "Faith without works is dead."

Adam fell from grace due to the influence of another. He failed to exercise his willpower. He yielded. Again we have a demonstration of weakness. God's plan is to develop strength and character.

God's conversation with Eve and Adam after they fell from grace involves the admission by themselves of their guilt. He did not accuse them. He questioned them relative to evidence and they condemned themselves. God's plan is not harsh. It is not too strict. It involves punishment as a result of digression entirely as a corrective measure. The situation we find ourselves in is due to our own muddling and stupidity and not to God. His plan is full of loving kindness.

The fact that the serpent was cursed demonstrates that God's plan involves discipline of the agents of Satan as a protective measure for his children. All the factors involved are in harmony with the plan of love. The next time you face chastisement analyze yourself in the light of past events. Understand God's plan.
