THE OLD-FASHIONED
CHURCH SUPPER

It's not so much in vogue now-a-days as it was when I was a boy. Suppers, that's the way they raised the preacher's salary, paid the debt on the church, bought a new stove, papered the walls and repaired the roof. Church suppers were going affairs, back across the years only an old grouch, or a stick in the mud, or an elderly person stiffened up with rheumatism could be kept at home. These church suppers attracted the whole countryside, it furnished a social center for any community. People would just come, in fact, they would miss something if they stayed away. It's a great pity we just don't have church suppers like they had in the olden day. Modern devices, such as the radio and automobile, have antiquated the way things used to be done. Then, butter costs more now, and eggs are up and many work the WPA, we didn't have that factory when I was a boy. I recall too that discoveries have been made during my life time, therefore some reason now that it is more convenient to carry a little money to church and meet the obligations in an up-to-date way than to kill a chicken and bake a cake and a couple of pies, to spend a day or a half day in getting everything ready for the church supper then to transport the repast to the meeting house and lastly, pay for the delight of eating it.

The old-fashioned church supper is passing, but with it passes a landmark, the social life that clustered about the church. The good folk had time to meet, to enjoy an evening at the church, to gather about the organ and sing, to sit about in groups and chat, to inquire about people's health, more, they took time to live. Pretty hard to beat the good times at the church suppers of forty years ago.

My friends, let us not depart from the old plan of meeting together frequently in the church house, young and old alike, for a social time, and let us have the eats, the groups of friends, the goodwill, the singing, let us take time to make each other happy.

The background of our Christianity is jewelled and illuminated with the cheer and loving associations of church suppers. The Great Teacher attended a supper long ago, the wedding in the little home by the side of the road was graced by His presence, they were not rebuked for having wine, Jesus gave them more and Suppers, yes, how often our loving Lord gathered people together and fed them. The deepest throbs of joy the Master had on earth were perhaps as the sun was setting and on the stone steps at the home in Bethany together with Lazarus, Mary and Martha and friends they broke bread together. Suppers, Jesus loved the fellowship that clustered about them and the human race will never cease to tell the story of the last supper in the upper room, in the City of the great King.

would be faithful Christians should be present at this service.
Answer these questions thoughtfully for yourself:

1. Can I be a faithful Christian and neglect the Lord’s table?
2. Do I always eat and drink
worthily?
3. Is my spiritual life enriched
in the communion?
4. Does our congregation emphasize the meaning and value of the Lord’s Supper as it should?

month of November there will be both morning and evening church

Keep Strong Drink Out Of Stow.... Vote Right on Tuesday

Alcohol sends thousands of people thru the gates of the insane asylum, the hospital and the cemetery every year.

Did you know that one—on—one ounce glass of whiskey, one average glass of wine and one bottle of beer each contain approximately the same amount of alcohol.

More alcohol equals Higher Death Rate. In 1917 a study was made for the benefit of forty-three American life insurance companies to determine the risk of insuring (1) those who at the time were slight users (not more than two beers or one whiskey a day), (2) those who had been drinkers to any degree, but were not drinking at the time of insurance, and (3) moderate users drinking more than in (1), but regarded as "temperate" and standard "risks."

The study covered the records of two million policy holders for a period of twenty-three years. If the average death rate among insured lives in general be placed at 100, then

Group (1) had 118 deaths, nearly one-fifth more than the average.
Group (2) had 150 deaths, one half more than the average.
Group (3) had 186 deaths, nearly double the average.

The statistical and laboratory evidence shows very clearly to the unprejudiced mind that even the moderate use of alcohol by any large group will increase the average death rate in this group as compared to a similar constituted group using no alcohol.

In Stow, within recent months we know of two deaths on the highway due to liquor consumed in Stow.

In the third chapter of 1st Corinthians, we read, "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man destroyeth the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, and such are ye."

Therefore, on November 8th be one of those to make your vote count for temperance. VOTE!
