TAXES

Yes, sir, that’s where the sting is. Taxes, we are taxed to death. A man said to me, you just can’t spit any more without paying tax. Taxes are a great grievance that we grant. We are taxed by the Federal Government, by the state, by the county, by the city. Many shades and variations of taxes, road tax, income tax, school tax, dog tax. Woe be unto this generation for the taxes eateth up our incomes like the locusts devoured the green fields of Egypt. Taxes it was that overcame Israel in the very peak of her glory. Solomon levied taxes, and lo a murmur arose among the people, the kingdom began to totter, the sinews snapped, and the glory that was Israel’s faded and passed away.

Normal taxes are the very fiber of any Nation, while abnormal taxes have been the death of great nations. The world’s greatest statesmen have not solved the tax problem, therefore, I will not go into the subject deeper than I can conveniently wade out.

Now, my brother, the great majority of men complain bitterly of the toll, or levy called taxes, with this burden I have little to console you. However, walk with me and I shall remind you of some stern facts. There are other taxes levied on us that cost us more by far than all the former taxes we are obliged to pay. Lost time, unemployment, wasted opportunities, false pride, cigarettes, drunkenness, laziness, sin and wicked strife, all these, my friends, are taxes. They are like carbuncles on the back, they are poison to the blood stream, they are nails for the coffin of any people that become burdened therewith.

What unnecessary tax burden have you assessed against yourself, or worse than all, have you taxed your own soul?

In material things, a necktie is a tax. It is somewhat uncomfortable in the hot weather, it’s a tax. Socks are conventional, they are a tax, I could do without mine in the summer time, but we must look like the other fellow and so we pay the tax. Candy, chewing gum, ice cream are luxuries. Candy has more to do with toothache and dentist’s bills than any one cause. Candy does not make muscle or red cheeks, therefore, it’s a tax. Chewing gum is a self-imposed tax. The Nation’s chewing gum bill is enormous, it takes our jitneys, gives us nothing in return, it’s a tax.

In the physical realm taxes are levied and collected without mercy, without compromise. An arm, a leg, or an eye gone, and that’s the toll or tax we pay. Some physical defect haunts like a ghost because we violated Nature’s laws, so, lo, the tax we must pay.

The spiritual man is also taxed. He is unlike the church building that escapes federal or local taxes. For forty years the soul might have had peace and hope. No tax, but nominal tax of service and worship, would ever be levied by the Almighty, but we ourselves impose the tax, the crushing, deadly tax of neglect or forgetfulness. A soul can be dwarfed, it can be impoverished, it may have no oil, and therefore, gives no light, hence the latter taxes are more terrible than the first.

THE MINISTER

SUNDAY SERVICES
Bible School starts at 9:30 a.m. and when combined with Church service as on last Sunday morning the congregation was dismissed at 11:15 a.m. Many commented favorably on this type of service, tho personally we believe that if the Minister has a good sermon to deliver it is difficult to say everything in twelve minutes. It almost seems that some are more concerned with feeding their stomachs than their souls. However a starving man is never given a full meal right at the start, and, by the time Fall arrives quite likely there will be an increased number who will be able to stand a full spiritual meal. They may even decide to include a mid-week Bible Study and Prayer meeting in their menu. It is quite possible that this type of service is a move in the right direction and it will be interesting to see how it works out. H. J. S.

Mr. Roy Arnold of Ft. Wayne, Indiana were visitors at the home of John W. Marhofer last Friday. They were on their way to New York City where Mr. Lowe will attend Columbia University working for his Master's Degree while Mr. Arnold will be engaged in theater work.

We apologize. Be it known that while well driller Anderson admits sleeping on that Canadian fishing trip as was recorded last week in this sheet, he was sleepy for purely natural reasons, i. e., hard work of some sort on the day preceding, quite possibly long hours spent in doing his own repair work at Marhofers, or perchance drilling a well, at any rate, he was not under the influence of anything stronger than water. It was 11 a. m. and besides to our knowledge Mr. Anderson never drinks anything stronger than water. We certainly are sorry to have given the impression that his sleeping might have been due to anything else than natural reasons. Mr. Anderson quite often goes on hunting and fishing expeditions and most likely this trip was rather a tame affair, therefore being weary he slept. We would probably sleep too.
