POLITY, OR WHAT THE COMMUNITY CHURCH IN STOW STANDS FOR

1

This church stands for a redeemed soul by the process of salvation in Jesus' name. This is commonly called the New Birth. By the new birth we mean a changed life, a life eagerly following the beautiful life of Jesus, as recorded in the New Testament. Be it known, that in Jesus Christ we find joy, peace, and our hope of Heaven. In Christ we are to seek and pursue a way on a higher plane, having a faith, a trust, a vision, a contact, in Him, an abiding confidence that wavers not amid the shifting sands of our earthly life, but is true and faithful till the day is done.

2

That this Community Church is unfavorable to all extremes of faith or worship, such as, gift of tongues, second work of grace, healing without human aid, sinless perfection, etc., etc. We have no objection to anyone reaching, or claiming to reach, such spiritual heights, we do object to anyone coercing or being overbearing in their efforts to persuade or convert others to their ideas. Our belief is that a Community Church should enjoy a freedom of doctrine permitting each soul the privilege of his own convictions.

3

That this church shall cling to the doctrine and practice of prayer and Bible study. That this feature of our church life shall be emphasized and enlarged. That a large majority of our church folk shall be expected to cooperate and profit by the exercise of prayer and a systematic study of the Bible. No one is so busy but that they can and should welcome a mid-week prayer and study hour.

4

That this church shall continue the practice of twice each year having a time of spiritual refreshing, a revival season, about Easter in the spring and Thanksgiving in the fall. That at these two seasons we give time for assembling at our church for a week, or more, to express our own joy and thanksgiving and to put forth an extra effort in behalf of our fellow creatures.

5

That this church have a new consecration to her praise in song and instrument. Any half-dozen members can take fire, if they be so disposed, and organize and advance a chorus of many voices. May our Lord bless some mighty effort by our own dear people that a rousing song service shall always be a feature of worship in Stow.

That this church plans to enjoy a new day free from embarrassment of debt. That each member follow the Bible plan of laying aside each week as you have prospered. Budget, tithe, my brother, make giving of your money a sacred thing, not haphazard and careless. Put a Christian life and giving together. Prove God, it works, countless millions testify to this fact. Then
That this church enjoy social gatherings, suppers, lawn fetes, bazaars, picnics, class meetings, etc., etc. I am unfavorable to any questionable meanings of making money, of any means whatsoever that savors of chance. However, I do give endorsement to home gatherings for social good, to the use of the basement or church when assembling ourselves in song, program and supper is intended for mutual good, edification and a joyous christian life.

That this church emphasize the community spirit of good-will, of tolerance, of agreeableness, of sociability. That whosoever will may come and be benefitted. That forgetting selfishness we may seek the good of all. That charity and a burning christian zeal may be the impelling influence that drives us on.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

How many people are particular to get a good road map when they take an automobile trip, and study it carefully. But so many never look inside the only road map of Heaven, the Bible, but go it blind.

HOW WE ARE KNOWN
By A. W. Agne

A man is known by the comp'ny he keeps,
The things he does and the harvest he reaps;
He's known because of the places he goes,
The words he speaks, and the seed he sows;
And then he's known by the fruit he bears,
By the way he walks, and the smile he wears;
But there's not a man in a million miles
Than can be known by his snappy styles;
For many a fool wears a silken hood
To cover a head that has turned to wood.

A man is known by the thoughts he thinks,
By the game he plays, and the stuff he drinks;
And he's always known by the way he pays
If the game is lost, and in other ways,
Consider the lives of the men who die,
Yet live in our hearts as the years go by.
As patriots, saints, or righteous men,
Just doing their best as best they can.
So whether you win or suffer defeat,
Be sure you're known by the people you meet.
