LOST

Deputy sheriffs ranged up and down the highways and by-ways; hundreds of neighbors, strong men, combed the hillsides, the ravines and the woods. Boy Scouts aided in checking the ground to see that no square yard of territory was missed. As the day wore on, the women of the community provided hot coffee and food for the sustenance of the searchers. Evening fell. Black clouds gathered in the west. Efforts were redoubled. Word to a nearby Army Post brought many soldiers to aid the searchers. Doctor and nurse stood by to give aid.

Now, you may ask, “For what were all these people looking?”

The answer, a little boy was lost. Just three years old. LOST! Lost from mother and father. Lost from home. The heartstrings of hundreds were stirred. The hope and prayer on every tongue was that he might be found; that he might be saved from hunger, cold, exposure; that he might be saved from the unknown terrors of the elements and a wild country side or perchance a cruel death in some swamp or gravel pit. People were doing everything humanly possible to save a little boy that was lost.

The picture changes.

We have a group of young people. One of them might have been that same little boy for whom hundreds searched a few years previous. These young people are out on a party. Nothing wrong about that. But two or three of the boys have somehow acquired a knowledge of certain drugs which incite uncontrollable passion. By stealthy trickery and guile several in the party induced unknowingly partake of the evil substance. Results, there are those of the group who make a start that night on a life of shame.

Well! You may ask, “What about it?” Yes, what about it? The answer is that these young people are LOST. Lost, just as surely, or even more so than the little three year old for whom hundreds searched. These young people of ours are LOST. The only difference is that theirs is a much worse condition. They are lost spiritually, and, not many nowadays are much concerned about the other fellow being reclaimed from a lost spiritual condition.

Time passes: The picture is prewar. In one of our larger cities hundreds of unemployed sit on the steel benches in the down town park. Fall winds cast a chilly warning of suffering to come, for most of the men are poorly clad. Many have hard lines about their faces. One old man having previously “pan-handled” enough to buy a few drinks staggers cursing across the sidewalk. Without doubt, he too, is lost, for—it is written that no drunkard shall inherit the Kingdom of Heaven.

Once, this derelict may have been that little boy for whom hundreds sought. Innocent, a beautiful child, he was his mother’s pride and joy. But as he grew older, in with the wrong crowd, parents both passing on, one misdeed led to another. First he was on probation, then finally they had to send him to the reformatory. Punished for his crimes? Yes,—but there was no one who made any serious attempt to save him from his lost condition.

Finally, came a term in the state prison. On being discharged there was no place for him in society. He had no job. No one wanted him. He was a lost soul. LOST to happiness, LOST to loved ones, LOST to Holiness, LOST to Heaven. Lost to fellowship with God, LOST! LOST for time and eternity.

As a youth, this old man might have been saved. He might have been saved to live a good and useful life. He might have been saved to meet the Lord in Heaven. But as a boy there was no one to pray for him. No one was interested in his betterment. Evil influences deformed his life. And just as a crooked tree that is not straightened will grow into a permanently misshapen specimen, so this boy became a man in iniquity, set in his ways, lost to hope of redemption.

In his youth he might have been easily won for the Lord.
However at the age of twenty-five the probability of being reclaimed, some say, had been reduced to about one in twenty-five thousand, and at the age we see him staggering across the walk in the city park, his chances of salvation were reduced to about one in a quarter of a million. He is LOST! LOST!

Christian,—if you are a Christian, you will be much concerned over the lost. Jesus, you remember, wept over the lost in the City of Jerusalem. Have you wept over any lost soul in Stow? If not, look into the condition of your own soul. You, too, may be lost. LOST! H. J. S.

LAST SUNDAY

Rev. L. M. Gregory of the Stow Church of Christ was kind enough to fill the pulpit of Community Church last Sunday morning. His sermon topic was "The Function of the Church."

Stating that an organization such as the church, as the years rolled by, might in time forget why they were brought into being, he said that it was well upon certain occasions to stop and ask ourselves the question "Why were we organized? Why did we come into existence?"

By way of illustration, schools were organized in the first place that scholars might have an education. Sometimes now, on a Friday or Saturday one might be inclined to the opinion that schools existed for the purpose of producing a winning football team, basketball team, etc.

Also, in the line of government, the State, for instance, was first organized here in America for the benefit of the people governed and not for those who govern. Sometimes those in power are inclined to forget this fact and a free election now and then helps us get back to the original intent and purpose of the State.

Regarding the church, Rev. Gregory stated that we might consider first some of the things which should NOT be the purpose of the church.

1. It is not the purpose of the church to entertain. Multitudes of folks nowadays have a movie complex. They must be entertained. But it is not the purpose of the church to compete with the theater.

2. It is not the purpose of the church to enforce the laws of the land or to regulate the morals of our community. While it is true the church stands for all that is good, decent, and law abiding the church would do better to reform the individual from within,—then these other things will die a natural death.

Question: What is the purpose of the church?
Answer: The purpose of the church is to evangelize the world. Jesus told the church to be (not the Romans—not the world—but the church) to seek and to save the LOST. He told them to go into ALL the world. Not only must we save the LOST in Stow, but in Africa, China, India, South America and many other places there are lost souls who need the Gospel. And don't forget: it is only through people that God can do this work of evangelism.

Rev. Gregory kindly but emphatically remarked that he considered the one weakness of a Community Church such as ours to be it's lack of a tie-in with a world wide program of evangelism. While there may be individuals, or a small group who are interested in such things, never, he remarked can we be a big church, a growing church or a thorough going spiritual church until the church here as an end in itself is forgotten and everyone has a deep interest in the Lord's work in another land.

"Get a missionary," he said "support one—or partly support one. Receive their letters—then when they come home have them talk to you." Then it will be that, as a church, we will be doing the work God intended to have us accomplish. Then and only then will be be a growing church.

Rev. Gregory further gave personal testimony as to the effectiveness of this program and pointed out examples where it was working to the Glory of God and the salvation of souls both at home and abroad.

CHURCH BUSINESS MEETING
The regular monthly business meeting of Stow Community Church will be held this Friday evening 7:30 P. M. in the church auditorium.

Forests and Conservation
We've heard a lot about conservation recently. We are teaching it in our schools. We read about it in our papers. Books are written about it. Louis Bromfield's Pleasant Valley stresses conservation of ground water and soil. Sports magazines stress stream pollution and the choking of stream beds with gravel. The tired factory worker wants a place to fish and hunt and relax. I like to think that the forests hold the key to a great many of these conservation problems. The forests protect the game. They check the runoff of water from rains. Erosion is at a minimum in a woods. If you want to compare the erosion from a plowed field with that from a woods, look at the water running from a cornfield after a summer rain: then do the same with a woods of the same size. Notice the volume and color of each; then you will see what I mean. A woods helps to temper the climate also. Don't you believe that the intense heat of our summers is the direct result of the cutting of our forests? The woods holds back the rain in the sponge of leaves, roots and humus that covers its floor. This water soaks downward to emerge complete.

as springs that feed the summer streams and protect the fish. Some of the moisture evaporates to help cool the air on hot days.

With this story of the value of the woods in Ohio before us we ought to see the forests being protected in order to insure these benefits for all the people who live here. What do we see when we visit the regions where commercial lumbering is being carried on? In most cases we see every tree being cut that can possibly make any marketable lumber. Not only are very small trees being cut, but the cutting is usually done without the least care being taken to protect smaller trees that are growing nearby. A tree six inches in diameter has taken a long time to grow that large, and it will soon be large enough to make a saw log; yet it is ruthlessly smashed to the ground by the cutters all too often. Some of the woods that I have seen lately are so badly flattened that it will be forty years before they yield any merchantable timber.

I believe that no tree should be cut for lumber before it is fifteen inches thick. I further believe that the men who saw down our trees for lumber should be licensed after examination and their licenses should be taken away from them when they show a certain degree of disregard for young growth. A farm woodlot that is being protected properly should be freed from a part of the taxes that would be levied against it. The forests are so vital to the welfare and happiness of the people of Ohio that their owners should consider that they hold them in trust for all the people. China cut off her forests, and her people suffer from flood and famine. Are we ready to live like the Chinese? If not, we should be ready to do something about our forests while we still have some to protect.

ONE WONDERFUL WEEK AT STOW CHURCH OF CHRIST

With but one exception our week of celebration in honor of our 115th Anniversary has gone beyond our expectation and that was the attendance last Sunday afternoon when Dr. Welshimer brought us a most inspiring and practical message which should have been heard by all. However, the attendance at the morning worship and the address by Miss Park were excellent, The day began with a morning Watch and breakfast by twenty-five of our high school group at seven in the shelter house of Adell Durbin Park. Even the rain failed to dampen the spirits of this fine group. On Wednesday evening the young people held their Youth Banquet with Rev Harold Monroe as guest of honor. About seventy-five were present and what a great time they had. Mr. Monroe was at his best and his visit in our midst will long be a cherished memory among our young people. On Thursday the older people in family groups sat down at 6:30 to a fine supper. The dining room was filled almost to capacity. The historical exhibit was interesting, the movies by Mr. Cobb were greatly enjoyed and the history of the first 100 years of our church in Stow as written by Mr. Scott Nickerson for our centennial 15 years ago was read. But Friday night was the big night for the children. And what a crowd of happy little tots was there. The basement was packed with them, dressed in every conceivable costume.

Mrs. Elizabeth Cowles and her helpers did one fine job in giving the children one of the biggest and happiest evenings our church has ever experienced. And then came Saturday and the Big Auction. A perfect autumn day and what a sale. The young people spent days in collecting odds and ends, selling practically everything they had, and netting about $320 to go toward the Chapel Fund. Rev. Gaines Cook, State Secretary, brought the closing address Sunday afternoon and the Chancel Octette of the North Hill Church furnished the music at that time.

ATTENTION!
MR. AND MRS. VOTE

For more favorable Fire Insurance Rates, and, for the benefit and protection of the community in which we live, the Stow Volunteer Fire Department request your support and endorsement of the special assessment which will appear on the November ballot. The purpose of this levy is to provide funds for the purchase of some much needed additional fire fighting equipment. If the special assessment is passed, the funds made available, will be used to purchase a new fire truck and build an addition to the present fire station in order to house it properly. NONE OF THE FUNDS WILL BE USED FOR SALARIES, or maintenance, such being covered by another budget. Particular attention is called to the fact that the assessment, proposed is not a NEW tax but will merely replace an old assessment the proceeds of which have been used to retire similar bonds over the past several years. Because of rising costs, the proposed assessment is slightly higher than the one which it will replace, but the amount of the increase amounts to less than one cent per hundred dollars of evaluation. It has been pointed out that much of the fire fighting equipment now on hand has been used for a period of years approaching and even exceeding the "normal life" of such equipment as defined by the Fire Underwriters Association. Replacements are consequently seriously needed.

STOW VOLUNTEER DEPARTMENT
Charles Perrine, President

This assessment endorsed and approved by the Stow Businessmen's Association and the Stow Community Council.
